

---

[Authors]

Franca Alacevich is Professor in Sociology of Labor and Industrial Relations at the School of Political Sciences “Cesare Alfieri” and, since 2013, Head of the Department of Political and Social Sciences (DSPS), at the Università degli Studi di Firenze. She is also Coordinator of the European Master in Labor Sciences since 1995, and she teaches Sociology of Labor (BA level), Sociology of Labor in Europe (MA level), Comparative Industrial Relations (post-graduate course). Member of the Board of Directors of the Bank of Italy, since 2012, her main research interests are: labor market, employment and new forms of labor and professions, gender inequality; industrial relations, collective bargaining and social dialogue, private and public labor policies and regulation of non-standard employment.

Cristina Calò has the BA in Political Science and International Relationship with a graduation thesis on the development of social capital. During her studies she had a formative stage in “Fondazione di ricerca Carlo Cattaneo” of Bologna. She also has a MA in Political Science and Decisional Processes, with a graduation thesis on the use of experimental method in political science. Her main research interests deal with the use of experimental method in political science.

Maria Pia Castro is research fellow at the Department of Political and Social Sciences, Università di Catania, where she teaches Social planning. Sociologist and specialized social worker, she is a member of the research center LAPOSS and deals with the study of professions, especially professional competence in social welfare services. Author of several essays on the role of social professions in the processes of welfare reform, she published: together with M. Teresa Consoli Servizio Sociale a Catania. La professione degli assistenti sociali nel pubblico (2004, Bonanno), and Le professioni sociali tra vecchie competenze e nuovi scenari in La professionalizzazione dell'Assistente Sociale (2010, Bonanno), edited by M. T. Consoli.

Roberta Cucca, PhD in sociology and methodology of social research, is Assistant Professor at the Politecnico di Milano. In 2010 she was post-doc fellow at the University of Toronto, Canada. Her main research interests deal with social inequalities in contemporary cities, welfare policies at local level, environmental policies and social vulnerability. Her recent publications include: together with Costanzo Ranci, Sviluppo economico e integrazione sociale in Europa. Politiche urbane a confronto, in «Imprese e città», n.1/2013; The Unexpected Consequences of Sustainability. Green Cities between Innovation and Ecogentrification, in «Sociologica», 2/2012; together with L. Maestripieri, Come le professioni cambiano tra vecchie regole e nuove strategie, in Partita Iva. Il ceto medio indipendente (Il Mulino, 2012) edited by C. Ranci.

Giovannipaolo Ferrari is a PhD student currently enrolled in a joint supervision programme between the Dipartimento di Scienze Politiche, Sociali e della Comunicazione - Università di Salerno in Italy and the Département des Sciences du Langage, I.T.I.C. of the Université Paul Valéry Montpellier III, in France. His main research interests deal with sociology of new professions, sociology of communication, social network analysis, analysis of interactions, qualitative methods. His PhD thesis (in common) is titled New professions and new media.

Jason Hughes is Professor and Head of Department of Sociology at the University of Leicester. His research interests span a range of concerns but include: problematised consumption; drugs, addiction and health; emotions, work and identity; figurational sociology and sociological theory; methods and methodology; moral panics and regulation. His first book, Learning to Smoke (University of Chicago Press, 2003) was winner of the 2006 Norbert Elias prize. More recently he has completed, together with Eric Dunning, a major study of the work of Norbert Elias entitled Norbert Elias and Modern Sociology: Knowledge, Interdependence, Power, Process (Bloomsbury 2013). He has also recently published a number of edited books, including Visual Methods (Sage, 2012) and Internet Research Methods (Sage, 2012); and co-edited books, including, together with J. Goodwin, Human Documents and Archival Research (Sage, 2014); together with C. Critcher, J. Petley and A. Rohloff, Moral Panics in the Contemporary World (Bloomsbury, 2013), and, together with N. Jewson and L. Unwin, Communities of Practice: Critical Perspectives (Routledge, 2007).

Chiara Lezzer, is a social worker and social planner. She worked as a research fellow in the project PRIN 2008 Salute, disuguaglianze sociali e Terzo settore in Italia at the Faculty of Sociology of the Università degli Studi di Trento. Currently, she is Lecturer in Methods and techniques of social work (LT in Social Work) and in Methodology of work in social services (LM MOVASS) at the Department of Sociology and Social Research, Università degli Studi di Trento. Her publications include: I servizi e gli interventi per la popolazione immigrata, in I luoghi del Servizio Sociale. Vol. I (Aracne, 2013), edited by A. Perino.

Lara Maestripieri, PhD in Sociology and Social research, is post-doc researcher at the Politecnico di Milano. Main research interests deal with narrative and biographical methods in the social research and investigation of post-industrial societies. She studies gender and social vulnerability, youth and precariousness, and professionals identity of knowledge workers. Her last publication is Consulenti di Management. Il professionalismo organizzativo nel lavoro di conoscenza, L'Harmattan Italia, 2013.

Cecilia Manzo, PhD in Economic Sociology, collaborates with Università degli Studi di Firenze and Fondazione RES. Her main research interests deal with local development, innovation and the role of social networks in professional careers. Her most recent research works were published in «Sociologia del Lavoro» and in La Nuova Occasione, edited by P. Casavola and C. Trigilia (Donzelli, 2012), and Dall'Isola al Mondo, edited by F. Asso e C. Trigilia (Donzelli, 2013).

Gaetano Morese, PhD in History of Mediterranean Europe from antiquity to modern age, is adjunct professor (2011-2013) at Human Sciences Department, Università della Basilicata. He deals to the historical dynamics related to agriculture and urban and industrial development, with particular attention to the landscape. Recently he published: Il paesaggio agrario della fascia jonica lucana dal XVIII al XX secolo, in G. Bonini e C. Visentin (eds), Paesaggi in trasformazione (Editrice Compositori, 2014).

Ivana Pais teaches Economic Sociology at the Faculty of Economics, Università Cattolica di Milano. Her main research interests concern to social networks and virtual professional communities. She recently published La rete che lavora (Egea, 2012), and together with P. Peretti and C. Spinelli Crowdfunding. La via collaborativa all'imprenditorialità (Egea, 2014).

Annamaria Perino is Associate Professor in the Department of Sociology and Social Research, Università di Trento, where she teaches Methods and techniques of social service I, and Methodology and work in social services. She is a member of the Executive Board of the Associazione Italiana di Sociologia (AIS), and member and coordinator of the Società Italiana di Sociologia della Salute. Her research interests include professional social services, social and health integration, complementary medicines, social policies and local development. One of her most recent publication (edited by) is: I luoghi del Servizio Sociale, voll. 2 (Aracne, 2013).

Marina Rago, PhD in Methodology of Social Sciences at Università degli Studi di Firenze, participates with a two-years fellowship in a research team - operative at CAPP (Center for the Analysis of Public Policies), Università di Bologna - dedicated to the study of interest groups in Italy from a political science perspective. Currently she is working as social researcher at Istituto degl'Innocenti in Florence, focusing her activities in searching, collecting, classifying and analyzing planning documents of local policies for children and adolescents in Italy. Her research interests span a range of concerns but include: epistemology of the social sciences, sociology, possibilities and limits of empirical research methods in the humanities.

Federico Sofritti is a doctoral student in Sociology at the Scuola di Scienze Politiche "Cesare Alfieri" of the Università degli Studi di Firenze. He deals with health reforms and their impact on the medical profession. His main research interests concern: sociology of professions, sociology of medicine, sociology of organization, health policy, and sociological theory. Recently he published La razionalità occidentale. Linee essenziali di un universalismo malcelato, in Sulla razionalità occidentale. Processi, problemi, dialettiche (Franco Angeli, 2013) edited by M. A. Toscano and A. Cirillo.

Elena Spina is researcher at the Dipartimento di Scienze Economiche e Sociali, Università Politecnica delle Marche. Her research interests span the sociology of professions: particularly her interest focuses in health themes, in social policies and in health policies. Her recent publications include An Evaluation of the Professional Status of Italian Midwives, in «Evidence Based Midwifery», 11, 3, (2013); Ostetriche e Midwives. Spazi di autonomia e identità corporativa (Franco Angeli, 2009).

Francesca Tacchi teaches History of journalism and Contemporary political and social history at the Università degli Studi di Firenze, and directs the Laboratorio di Fonti e Metodi per la storia contemporanea (Dipartimento Sagas). She studies in particular the history of the university and of professions (engineers, jurists, journalists), also from a gender perspective. Among her recent research interests: the journalism profession, the relationship between history and cinema, and international juridic associationism. Principal publications: Gli avvocati italiani dall'Unità alla Repubblica (Il Mulino, 2002); Eva togata. Donne e professioni giuridiche in Italia dall'unità a oggi (Utet, 2009); Professioni e potere a Firenze tra Otto e Novecento (Franco Angeli, 2012, ed.).

Mariselda Tassarolo is Professor of Sociology of cultural processes communication at the Faculty of Psychology, Università di Padova. Her preferential research interests concerns the field of sociology of communication with particular reference to the study of music and other forms of art. She is author of many articles and paper, and her publications include: L'espressione musicale e le sue funzioni (Giuffrè, 1983); Minoranze linguistiche e immagine della lingua (Franco Angeli, 1990); La musica del cinema, (Bulzoni, 1997); Moda e comunicazione. Ricerche sull'abbigliamento (2000 ed., Il Poligrafo); La comunicazione interpersonale, (Laterza, 2007); L'arte contemporanea e il suo pubblico (Franco Angeli, 2009).

---

Annalisa Tonarelli, PhD, is assistant professor in Sociology of Labor and Industrial Relations at the School of Political Sciences “Cesare Alfieri”, Università degli Studi di Firenze. She coordinates the Laboratory of Labor Sciences Laboris, at PIN Polo Universitario Città di Prato, and she is also member of CAMBIO, the research unit on social changes of the Department of Political and Social Sciences (DPS), and member of LUAM, Laboratory on conflict mediation and resolution, Department of Law. She teaches Social problems (post-graduate course). Her main research interests concern: labor market; employment and new forms of labor and professions; work, family and gender; working class condition and industrial decline; poverty and social inclusion.

Jean-Yves Trépos, born in 1948, is Professor of Sociology, Université de Lorraine, at Metz, where he teaches the Sociology of expertise and of professions, the Sociology of social policies and methodology. His main research interest was to build a strong articulation between a sociology of politics and a sociology of knowledge, by exploring various fields: in social work (drug addiction, domestic violence, prisons), in general practice of medicine, and in the policies and politics of plurilingualism. He published La sociologie de l'expertise (PUF, 1996), and more recently: L'écriture de la sociologie. Essai d'une sociologie du style en sciences sociales (L'Harmattan, 2011).

Marta Vignola is researcher at the Department of European Union & Mediterranean Law (EMUI) – Complutense University of Madrid and Research fellow at Università del Salento. Visiting Researcher at GERME (Group for research on Ethnic Relations, Migration & Equality) Research Centre, Faculty of Social and Political Sciences of the Université Libre de Bruxelles. She is a lawyer, with master degree in human rights and humanitarian intervention, and she has a PhD in Sociology of Law. Her studies concern human rights and processes of democratization in Latin America. Her latest publications include: La memoria desaparecida. Política e movimenti per i diritti umani in Argentina (Pensa Multimedia, 2012); L'America Latina tra dipendenza, sviluppo e diritti umani: il caso Cile (Besa, 2010).