

AUTHORS

Nicolas Arens is a PhD candidate (F.R.S.-FNRS) working with Florence Delmotte (F.R.S.-FNRS) at the University of Saint-Louis – Bruxelles. The subject of his thesis is the “European Topicality of Tocquevillian Democracy”. He intends to conflate a political theory approach focused on Tocqueville’s thought along with the current question of the democracy in European Studies. On Tocqueville’s approach he has published “La démocratie Tocquevillienne. Un parcours dialectique” (RIEJ, 2015) and “Les archives Tocqueville. Écrire l’instabilité de la démocratie” (Revue Tocqueville/Tocqueville Review, forthcoming, 2018).

Oriane Calligaro is a Research Fellow and a Lecturer at the Institute for European Studies/CEVIPOL, Université libre de Bruxelles. She is member and coordinator of the project ValeUR “Governing values, governing through values, governed by values? The European Union as a risk polity”. Her current research explores the role of European civic society organizations in the production of anti-discrimination norms and their use of European values and references to them as well. She mainly published on EU identity-related policies in the cultural and academic fields, as in her monograph: Negotiating Europe. The EU promotion of Europeanness since the 1950s (Palgrave Macmillan, 2013). She is member of the editorial board of the journal Politique européenne and of the research project FoLo (Forms of Political Loyalty) of the French Association of Political Science.

Maria Cristina Carraro, sociologist and pedagogist, has been working in the last 26 years in public health organization. Her work looks at safety and prevention of work related stress. She is author of various articles about stress among teachers in educational settings.

Stefano Cifiello, Psychologist, Sociologist, Trainer. For his sociological and psychological research and training activity he has worked with various public and private organizations on topics such as: characteristics of organizations and social professions; phenomena of working stress; immigration and racism; lifestyles and consumption; pathological dependencies, smoking dependency and techniques and ways of intervention on pathological and self-destructive behaviors. He is author and coworker of various publications on these themes.

Florence Delmotte is Research Associate at the Belgian Fund for Scientific Research (F.R.S.-FNRS) and professor of political science at the Université Saint-Louis - Bruxelles where she currently is the director of the Political Science Research Centre (www.crespo.be). Her research focuses on the relevance of Norbert Elias's historical sociology and other "classics" in order to ponder post-national integration in Europe and beyond. She is the author of number of articles in French and English. She also published Norbert Elias: la civilisation et l'État, Bruxelles, Éditions de l'Université de Bruxelles, 2007. Among her recent publications: Delmotte F., Duez D. (eds), Les frontières et la communauté politique. Faire, défaire et penser les frontières, Bruxelles, Presses de l'Université Saint-Louis, 2016; Delmotte F., Mercenier H., Ingelgom V., Sentiment d'appartenance et indifférence à l'Europe. Quand des jeunesses s'emmêlent (ou pas), in A. Faure, E. Negrier (eds), La politique à l'épreuve des émotions, Rennes, Presses Universitaires de Rennes, 2017, 125-139; Delmotte F., Majastre, C., Violence and Civility: The Ambivalences of the State, in F. Depelteau, T. Savoia Landini (eds), Norbert Elias and Violence, Palgrave, 2017, 55-80.

Florence Di Bonaventura. PhD researcher at the Center for Political Science and at the Institute for European Studies of the Université Saint-Louis - Bruxelles. Research interests: Historical sociology of the State and related concepts such as revolutions, integration, representation, citizenship, democratisation; Italian history ; Theory and Methodology of the concepts of revolution, (political) representation(s), citizenship, Identity and Ideology; more broadly democracy and temporalities; social and political movements and resistances to Europe; Social history and theory of political ideas; Antonio Gramsci's thought/political theory; Epistemology and methodology of political and historical sociology, more broadly human sciences. Among her publications: Italy and Lega Nord. Stories of communities, national (dis)integration and spaces of (restricted) citizenship, in «Società Mutamento Politica», 1/2016, 7, 13; L'instrumentalisation de l'histoire dans le discours de la Lega Nord, in «revue ¿Interrogations?», décembre 2015, 21.

Patrizia Fazzi, lecturer at the Department of History at the University of Turin and Milan, is interested in Contemporary History and Sociology of Migration. Among his publications we remark: Globalization and Migration. A brief story from the modern age to nowadays, FrancoAngeli, Milan 2015, Migration and social transformation in Italy. From the modern age to nowadays, FrancoAngeli, Milan 2008; together with the Department of Social Sciences, University of Turin: The Movement of the objectors to military spending in Italy, in Anna Anfossi, TK Oommen (ed.), Actions out of political parties, FrancoAngeli, Milan 1997. Among the essays we report: Global development, global crises: an economic path in contemporary history, in «Novecento.org», Insmli, 8, 2017, Ukraine and the new split of Europe in the 21st century, in «Storia e Futuro», 43, 2017.

Paolo Giovannini, former Dean of the Faculty of Political Science "Cesare Alfieri" at the University of Florence, and former professor of Sociology. Visiting professor at Warwick, Barcelona, and other European universities. Associated with several research centers, he has founded a Research Laboratory on Social Changes (CAMBIO) and he is the former Editor-in-chief of the online journal of the same name.

Luca Guizzardi, is Research fellow in “Sociologia dei processi culturali e comunicativi”, at the Dipartimento Scienze per la qualità della vita, Università di Bologna. His main research interests are social transformations of familial and sentimental relations. He is working on an empirical research on with same sex families’ parental networks and the social and symbolic processes underlying their construction. Among his recent publications: “Moiaussi, alors, je serai grand-mère”. La construction de la parenté dans les familles homosexuelles, in «International Review of Sociology», 2016, 26(2); (eds), We are family. Same-sex families in the Italian context, in «Italian Sociological Review», 2017, with the essay In September, They Will Start to Ask: ‘So You All Come Here for Christmas?’. Rainbow Families and the Gift of Kinship.

Alex Law is Professor of Sociology at Abertay University Scotland. His most recent publications include Social Theory for Today (Sage, 2015) and Sociological Amnesia (Ashgate, 2015), co-edited with Eric Lybeck. Currently he is working on a historical sociology of the Scottish civilising process.

Christophe Majastre is a PhD student at the Université Saint-Louis–Bruxelles and a research fellow at the Centre de Recherches en Science politique (CReSPo) in Bruxelles. His current research deals the role of legal scholars as public intellectuals in the debate over the European Union in Germany.

